Del. Pollard goes to work

RICHMOND—Following the overnight certification of ballots, Del. Albert Pollard, newly elected delegate from District 99, joined the already under way legislative session last Wednesday morning in a brief swearing in ceremony.

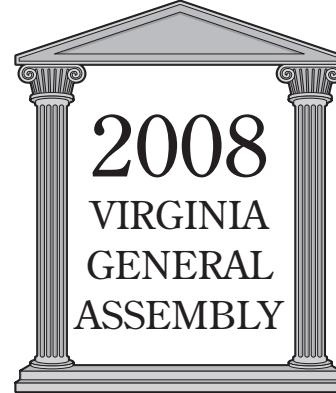

Following the ceremony Del. Pollard began the work of casting votes and representing the district immediately. On his first full day, Pollard voted on the House version of the budget, went to a meeting of the "Cost Cutting Caucus" and coordinated with his aide, Cathy Hemans.

"Public service is gratifying. I don't think anyone was comfortable with the legislative session going on without a vote in the House of Delegates. Whether at my desk on the floor of the Assembly, or at an after-session meeting of the Cost-Cutting Caucus, I plan to bring an independent voice and a large dose of Northern Neck common sense to the House of Delegates," said Del. Pollard.

Del. Pollard's in-session address is General Assembly Building, Room 16, Capitol Square, Richmond, Va 23219.

Tuesday is the last day to file for town elections

by Audrey Thomasson

LANCASTER—Citizens interested in declaring for a seat on the Kilmarnock, White Stone or Irvington town councils have until 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 4, to file for a spot on the May 6 election ballot.

To file, contact the Lancaster County registrar's office at 8694 Mary Ball Road, or 462-277.

Kilmarnock

A week prior to the deadline, two citizens have filed as candidates for the three open positions on the Kilmarnock town council. Registrar Peggy Harding reports she has received declaration forms from Tara Ellen Donahue of Pine Drive and Rebecca Tabbs Num of Kenmore Avenue.

Councilman Les Spivey reported this week that he does not plan to run for his seat on council. Frank Tomlinson previously stated his intent not to seek reelection, while Paul Jones remains undeclared.

Nearly two years into his second term on council, vice-mayor Fletcher Brown announced his intention to resign from council in the next few months. Brown said he is planning to move his family to Ohio this summer. By state code, the remainder of his term will be filled by appointment.

White Stone

In White Stone, only Rev. Dennis Martin of Chesapeake Drive has declared his candidacy in a contest for four open positions, including those held by councilmen Jack Johnson, Stewart Revere, David Jones and the seat vacated last year by E. Trip Hornsmith.

Irvington

Gene H. Edmonds of Old Mill Cove Road has filed for a seat on Irvington's town council and Kathleen Pollard of Carters Creek Road is the only incumbent to declare so far.

Terms also ending in June are those of councilmen Richard Pittman and Gary Luckham as well as that of Mayor Alexander Fleet.

For additional information or to obtain candidacy forms, contact registrar Peggy Harding at 462-5277 or download forms from the State Board of Election internet site, sbe.virginia.gov.

After several years, Glebe Point project lacks identity

by Audrey Thomasson

HEATHSVILLE—Will it be a hotel? A marina and restaurant? A 14-unit condo development? Or a 28-unit condo?

Northumberland planning commissioners were so befuddled last week over another proposed change in plans for property next to the Glebe Point bridge, they were reluctant to consider action of any kind. Commission chairman A.L. Fisher had to call for a motion several times before members finally decided not to decide and tabled the matter.

James L. Dunn had requested a zoning change from Business (B-1) to Residential Waterfront (R-2) on 1.2 acres for a 28-unit condo development at 104 Glebe Point Lane. The development would result in a density of .043 acres per unit.

The issue for members stemmed from Dunn's prior proposals dating back to April 2003 when he originally applied to construct a five-story building at the site. The request was denied by the board of zoning appeals because the building was not considered "public" as defined by the ordinance and thus was too tall, according to assistant county administrator Luttrell Tadlock. However, an associated permit for a 33-slip marina was approved by the board of supervisors.

In December 2003, Dunn applied for a permit to build a hotel and restaurant at the site. That permit was issued the following January.

Dunn was back in 2005 with a request to rezone the land from Business (B-1) to Residential Waterfront (R-2) in order to construct a 14-unit condominium. The request was denied by the board of supervisors.

His latest request for a 28-unit condo development resulted in protests from a couple dozen citizens.

"Bad proposals do not die, they resurface when a change on the board of supervisors may give them a different outcome," Gérard Bélanger claimed. The Balls Creek resident also said the proposal was a "violation of the Chesapeake Bay Act and the county's goal of sustaining the look of land use."

"Does he seek to wear everyone down so that you'll throw up your hands and say—'Oh, let's give the man what he wants?'" asked Nancy Brand of Wicomico Church. Brand also noted the development would cause traffic congestion at the base of the bridge because of vehicles pulling boat trailers across traffic into the development.

Several people said the high-density plans would have a negative impact on the river and warned that rezoning would have permanent consequences. Others noted the developer's record of letting the permits expire several times and said they believe it was always his intent to build a multi-level condo development as denied on his first attempt.

"I am totally perplexed at his audacity to try again... with an even bigger project," said Ilona Duncan of Heathsville. "What is even more amazing is that we currently have a half-finished marina. Is the county being held hostage for the completion of the project?"

Ann Bélanger said she felt "frustrated and deceived" by the developer's constant requests.

"The Economic Development Commission recommends this zoning remain as it is," said Joe Madaj. "The property is better suited to business because it is in the shadow of the bridge. It was zoned for business to supply jobs at the hotel, restaurant and an active marina—jobs that will benefit the county."

The county received a letter from Jack Booth supporting the latest request. Area residents claimed Booth sold the property to Dunn.

A Closer Look

by Jane Tims

Lydia Juron, a snowy, flowy Borzoi, has just bought a saucy spring bonnet to wear at the Northern Neck Kennel Club's fashion show on March 8 at Indian Creek Yacht and Country Club.

Event co-chairman Gwen Keane and Isadora, her Maltese, will moderate the show. The Dandelion, Dawson's, Foxy's, Indian Creek pro shop, Khakis, Peebles and Wildest Dreams will clothe the 24 human models. God has dressed the dogs.

Most will be certified therapy dogs, an important component of the kennel club. Retiring therapy dog Annie Langloh, a magnificent Siberian husky, will be honored for her selfless work at schools, libraries and nursing homes. Her owner, Dr. John Langloh, has witnessed the improved health of patients when dogs visit.

The kennel club educates and, adding a serious overtone to a jolly day, will dedicate the fashion show and luncheon to all canine participants in past wars and now in Iraq, Afghanistan and the war on terror.

Interested in war dogs since the early 1990s, co-chairman Sue Anne Bangel will display a traveling 14-panel exhibit on dogs of war that she first arranged to bring here in 1996. W. Taylor Murphy Jr., former Virginia delegate and secretary of natural resources, successfully introduced a resolution to recognize dogs of war, and Sue Anne believes we are the only state to have proclaimed such appreciation.

Fashion show guests will have an opportunity to sign a petition encouraging the designation of March 13 as K-9 Veterans Day, a nationwide movement led by trainer Joe White. It was on that date in 1942 that the first official American canine corps was established. The commemorative day would celebrate dogs that have served in the work of the military, search and rescue, various facets of law enforcement, and therapy.

Sue Anne has researched stories. In Iraq, a dog left his wandering pack and befriended a Marine, who named him "Nubs" and nursed his screwdriver puncture wound back to health. When the Marine unit was relocated 70 miles away, regulations prevented Nubs from going. Braving sub-freezing weather, wolves and nomadic dog packs, Nubs trekked 70 miles over two days to find his master.

Celebrating, the Marine built him a doghouse before being killed in action. In the Marine's memory, his family at Camp Pendleton is adopting Nubs.

For service in World War I, President Wilson recognized Stubby, a mutt who wandered onto training grounds at Yale and then accompanied the soldiers overseas. Stubby took bullets and grenade shrapnel, sniffed out mustard gas attacks, and snatched a child from a carriage's path in France.

Like a working dog, it's a working kennel club: training, educating, showing, facilitating rescue and adoption, and improving life for children and seniors through its therapy dog program."

In England, John Ryan of Northumberland worked with RAF-trained sentry dogs for U.S. bases in England, and in the mid 1950s transported sentry dogs from Japan to bases in the Philippines. Fatal heartworm disease was rampant. American veterinarians came to the sentry dog center in Japan to work toward the heartworm prevention so common today.

"I was just so moved by these war dogs that I wanted to honor them," said Sue Anne. "It's another way to show how dogs can be so meaningful in our lives."

The club has a busy spring. In addition to the fashion show, its obedience and agility training classes resume in March. A sanctioned member of the American Kennel Club, the NKKC will sponsor two all-breed shows at the Fredericksburg fairgrounds on April 2 and 3. Marty Nelson, show chairman, said many local dogs will compete and spectators, advised to leave their pets at home, are encouraged to attend the free show.

"The fashion show is a community service, part of our face in the community," said Gwen. "We are a special AKC club because we welcome people who don't have AKC dogs. We had a harder time getting certified because of our work with non-AKC dogs, but we are trying to help educate people and help dog owners. We have a network with all the animal groups as well as the shelters. There are pluses and minuses to having an AKC dog and a throwaway, and I've got them both."

Like a working dog, it's a working kennel club: training, educating, showing, facilitating rescue and adoption, and improving life for children and seniors through its therapy dog program.

For training, call Beverly Griffith at 580-4669. For fashion show reservations at $30 per ticket, call Gwen at 435-2618. Support the Northern Neck Kennel Club, a beacon for the people and dogs of this community.

I'll fly away

Recently my sleep-filled eyes first decided that this was yet another bleak winter day. Then, when my brain caught up with my eyes, they shared that indeed 'twas winter, but unlike other years, perhaps a mild winter day at that. After a cup of coffee my memory whispered Grandma Rosie's take that "some of our worst winter days come in late February through mid April."

Have you ever noticed that our perception of the day flavors our lives? Take away our sunshine and we often wander into mopey-land, barely able to drag our hulks through the vicissitudes of the day.

I suspect that one reason we dread and fear bleak days is that we haven't made a sufficient investment in our days beyond this mortal coil. A hint exists in the way we identify with bleakness. Our definition of death is far short of what we read in the Bible.

Our deaths launch the believer into a more perfect world, one inhabited by the souls of the departed who had the good sense to accept Jesus as savior.

The Bible sheds light on the fact that we have a supreme God who actually spoke the world into existence. After he spit on some red clay, generations upon generations of his prophets, priests, kings and judges exhibited that God's laws were seemingly impossible to keep.

Leaning back on the Gates of Heaven, God realized that there had to be a better way to capture the heart, minds and souls of his creations. It would be a sacrificial decision.

God would pave a way for us to be redeemed by the shed blood of Jesus, who therefore would become our Christ.

Now, that's a sunny opportunity for everyone. But it requires faith and it requires that we stop resting upon our laurels and take an active leap of faith. We have to accept God's sacrificial gift and place ourselves under the blessing, forgiveness and opportunities of a lifetime.

It is written, "This is not our final home."

Ask yourself then if you, if we, have made anywhere near as much preparation for our eternal home?

There are many hymns sung in our sanctuaries that attempt to lift the fallen, strengthen the weak and revive our spirits. One such hymn is "I'll Fly Away," the words and music of Alfred E. Brumley. The song is anchored in scripture.

"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord." 1 Thessalonians 4:16-17

Brumley (1905-77) was born on a cotton farm near Spiro, Okla. He attended the old Hartford Musical Institute at Hartford, Ark., and sang with the Hartford Quartet. Later he taught singing schools in various parts of the Ozarks. In 1931, he met and married Goldie Edith Schell at one of those schools in Powell, Mo. They raised their six children together.

Brumley composed "I'll Fly Away," recalling that he was picking cotton and singing the popular song, "If I Had the Wings of an Angel." Suddenly, he thought about flying away.

"Actually, I was dreaming of flying away from that cotton field when I wrote 'I'll Fly Away,'" he said.

That thought, of course, like the thoughts that underlie all his many songs, was based upon his own deep spiritual convictions.

Brumley was working in his father-in-law's general store for a dollar a day when the song was accepted and published. The song brought him notoriety. He was hired as a staff writer by Hartford Publishing for $12.50 a month.

Later he formed the company that bought Hartford along with the rights to all the extant Stamps-Baxter songs. Stamps-Baxter were famous for their shape-note songs. Many a shape-note singing event was held locally at the steamboat and campground camps on the Northern Neck.

The song became Brumley's most recorded. He wrote over 800 gospel and sentimental songs. In 1970 he was inducted into the Country Song Writers Hall of Fame. Let's sample his hymn:

Some glad morning when this life is o'er, I'll fly away;
to a home on God's celestial shore, I'll fly away,
I'll fly away.

I'll fly away, oh Glory; I'll fly away, in the morning. When I die, Hallelujah, by and by, I'll fly away, I'll fly away.

When the shadows of this life have gone, I'll fly away;
like a bird from prison bars has flown, I'll fly away,
I'll fly away.

I'll fly away, oh Glory, I'll fly away, in the morning. When I die, Hallelujah, by and by, I'll fly away, I'll fly away.

Just a few more weary days and then, I'll fly away;
to a land where joy shall never end, I'll fly away,
I'll fly away.

I'll fly away, oh Glory; I'll fly away, in the morning. When I die, Hallelujah, by and by, I'll fly away, I'll fly away.

Granted, this is an emotional old hymn. Sadly, it has fallen from the list of popular favorites. It lifted its author. It has refreshed my ministry on many occasions. You can come 'round Irvington Baptist Church and sing it afresh this coming Sunday.

Obituaries

William P. Carl

KILMARNOCK—William Price Carl, 90, of Kilmarnock died February 19, 2008.

Mr. Carl grew up in Baldwin, Long Island, N.Y., where he was a member of a nationally ranked high-school football team. He graduated from Princeton University in 1940. In his early years, he worked in the family firm on Long Island as chief engineer of John H. Carl and Sons, carpenters and builders. He also participated in the sailing and boat building of Great South Bay. As a student at Princeton, he and two others began the aeronautical engineering course. After graduating he built the first hyper-sonic wind tunnel.

In 1941, he enlisted in the Army, and later received a commission in the Army Air Force. He engineered an easy, inexpensive remedy for preventing B-25 bombers from breaking up and sinking when they were ditched by pilots. He was instrumental in the design of a long-range pursuit craft and came up with the notion of twinning the hulls of the P-51. This plane was designated the P-82 after development at Lockheed and came in service just as World War II ended. It became an escort craft during the Korean War, holding records for the highest speed and longest range for a propeller fighter.

The first test pilot of the P-82 was Ann Baumgartner whom he married in 1945.

She was a member of the Women's Air Service Patrol and was the first woman to fly a jet aircraft. After serving in World War II, he began his research into hydrofoils for the Navy, for which he obtained two patents. In partnership with Robert Gilruth, who became head of NASA's Manned Space Center in Houston, they researched and developed a series of test craft that eventually resulted in the XCH-4 hydrofoil, which still holds the open-water speed record of 96 mph. Dynamic Developments, the company he founded with Gilruth and Grant Hedrick, was bought by Grumman Aircraft in 1961 and he became general manager of Grumman's marine department. He also developed hydrofoils for outboard motors ferries and gunboats still operating in the U.S.A., Italy and China.

After retiring, he and his wife spent two years sailing across the Atlantic, around the Mediterranean and back to the U.S.A. His wife served as navigator. He privately published a brief autobiography, completing it the day before he died.

He is survived by his wife of 63 years, Ann Baumgartner Carl; a daughter, Margaret "Peggy" Laufer of Ontario, Canada; a son, Peter Carl of Cambridge, England, and a granddaughter.

A memorial service was held February 23 at Grace Episcopal Church in Kilmarnock with the Rev. David May officiating.

Currie Funeral Home in Kilmarnock handled the arrangements.

Pauline W. Crabbe

MORATTICO—Pauline Wright Crabbe, 92, of Morattico died February 22, 2008.

Mrs. Crabbe was born in Oldham's to Wilford and Caroline Taylor Wright. She was the widow of William Mayo Crabbe. She was a member of Norwood Baptist Church.

She is survived by a daughter and son-in-law, Doris C. and James P. Bussells of Lively; a son and daughter-in-law, W. Carter and Anne H. Crabbe of Melfa; six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

A graveside service was held February 25 at St. Mary's Whitechapel Cemetery near Lively with the Rev. Carlton Milstead Jr. officiating. Pallbearers were Jeffrey Bussells, William Bussells, Rodney Bussells, Thomas Gene Haynie, Matt Crabbe, Matthew Stamm and Frederick Bates.

Memorials may be made to Norwood Baptist Church, P.O. Box 85, Morattico, VA 22523.

Currie Funeral Home in Kilmarnock handled the arrangements.

Eugene Croxton Jr.

SPRINGDALE, MD.—Eugene "Gene" Croxton Jr., 75, of Springdale, Md., formerly of Lottsburg, died February 13, 2008, at the Veterans Hospital in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Croxton was born March

11, 1932, in Lottsburg to Eugene and Mary Paige Croxton. He attended Holley Graded School and Julius Rosenwald High School in Northumberland County. He joined Zion Baptist Church. He served in the U.S. Army M edical Corps during the Korean War. After the Army, he moved to Washington, D.C., where he attended Cortez Peters Business College and received an associate's in business administration. He was self-employed for more than 40 years.

He was predeceased by his parents and a brother, James Croxton.

He is survived by his wife of 32 years, Joyce; a son, Gordon; a granddaughter, Melanie; four sisters, Lucille Burrell, Shirley Croxton, Elizabeth Richardson and Dorothy Croxton; two brothers, William and Alton Croxton; an uncle, James Paige; two aunts, Helen Paige and Beatrice Thompson; four sisters-in-law, Thelma Stephen, Adell Croxton, Hattie Matthews and Ella Croxton; a brother-in-law, Cermett Martin; and many sisters, nephews, other relatives and other nephews.

Currie Funeral Home in Kilmarnock handled the arrangements.

DuPont Fund supports senior volunteer program

Trustees of the Jessie Ball duPont Fund recently awarded $72,552 to Calvary United Methodist Church in Farnham to support a senior adult day care program in partnership with the Richmond County YMCA.

The grant was among 19 awards, valued at more than $1.9 million, made by the trustees during their first-quarter meeting for 2008.

Currently, there is no centrally located program in Richmond County providing day care programs for seniors. Families who care for seniors have no central resources for respite care.

Volunteers from Calvary United Methodist Church will provide programming one day a week at the newly renovated Richmond County YMCA. By year three of the program, the church hopes to have the capacity to serve more than a quarter of the local population over the age of 55.

The Jessie Ball duPont Fund makes grants to more than 330 eligible organizations identified by Mrs. duPont in her will. The fund has assets of more than $315 million and has awarded $265 million in grants since 1977.

Rev. Howard to lead Sharon Baptist service

The Rev. Gregory M. Howard will preach at Sharon Baptist Church in Weems March 30 at 3:30 p.m.

A native of Lancaster, Rev. Howard lives in Richmond. He is married to the former Margaret Edmond and is the father of two girls, Destiny and Hollie.

Rev. Howard is the pastor of Union Branch Baptist Church in Chesterfield.

Rev. Howard has a bachelor's in organizational management and development from Bluefield College and a M.Div. from the Samuel DeWitt Proctor School of Theology at Virginia Union University. He is pursuing a Doctor of Ministry in Homiletics from the Aquinas Institute of Theology at St. Louis University.

Rev. Howard is also a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Inc., and an active supporter of local, state and national conventions.

He will be accompanied by the Young Adult Choir and members of his congregation.

RW-C chaplain receives endorsement

The Rev. Dr. Davis Smith

The Rev. Dr. Davis Smith has sought and received Ecclesiastical Endorsement by the Alliance of Baptists for his work as full-time chaplain at Rappahannock Westminster-Canterbury.

Ecclesiastical Endorsement is a professional credential of excellence conferred by many denominations upon their ministers working in ecumenical settings, and is required for all military and government chaplains. Endorsement affirms that the recipient has had appropriate education and experience for his particular ministry, and that he is connected in good standing to his denomination.

For the certification, Smith submitted transcripts from the University of Richmond, where he earned a bachelor's in English; from Andover Newton Theological School in Massachusetts, where he earned a master's that included clinical pastoral education at the Medical College of Virginia and at Virginia Baptist Hospital in Lynchburg; and from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, where he earned the doctorate.

The endorsement process required recommendation from the administration of RW-C and from Smith's pastor at Grace Baptist Church in Richmond. To demonstrate the ecumenism of his chaplaincy, Smith also asked local Presbyterian and Episcopal clergy to send letters. "Ecumenism does matter to me in that I try to minister to people in ways that they in their tradition can respond," said Smith, a Baptist serving within RW-C's Episcopal and Presbyterian roots. "It has broadened my own ways of doing things. To minister in an ecumenical setting is to respect other traditions."

Before coming to RW-C, Smith served as pastor at Individually, he is a member of the Alliance of Baptists, which defines itself as a clear voice for Christian freedom, distinctively Baptist and intentionally ecumenical in an interfaith world.

Smith will attend the Annual Convocation of the Alliance in New Orleans in late March, after which he will participate in a sanctioned retreat for chaplains and pastoral counselors. He and his wife, Barbara, live in Topping.

"As part of the commitment to wellness at RW-C, the spiritual aspect of life is every bit as important as all other emphases," said Faye Bottomley, vice president for marketing. "Ecclesiastical endorsement is another indication that our chaplain is equipped for ministering and demonstrating RW-C's focus on the spiritual."

Family maternity center outlined at men's breakfast

"With Northern Neck babies dying at a rate three to four times above the state average, clearly it's time to do what's needed to improve what's happening here."

That was the challenge of Shirley Dodson-McAdoo, president of the Family Maternity Center of the Northern Neck at last week's Grace Episcopal Church men's breakfast. A Registered Nurse and Adult Nurse Practitioner, she is leading an effort to establish a $1.6 million modern maternity and rural health center near Lancaster.

Demand for such a health facility became apparent when Rappahannock General Hospital closed its maternity facility in 2004.

The proposed center has received funds appropriated by the Virginia General Assembly as well as financial help from several organizations. Grace Church has pledged $16,000 from its 2007 Yard Sale proceeds

Phillips honored by association

Outgoing White Stone Business Association (WSBA) president Ron Phillips was recently presented a gift by association president-elect Sandra Matthews in appreciation for his support and services during his tenure.

WSBA projects and events in 2007 included the fifth annual White Stone Business Association Golf Tournament, the White Stone Village Green Project and the second annual Dickens Festival.

The WSBA encourages community participation and is expanding to include residential owners. The group hopes that sharing ideas and promoting businesses in the White Stone area will help ensure growth and prosperity, according to WSBA historian Alice Dix.

General membership meetings will be held the first Monday of each month at 5 p.m. in the White Stone Town Hall. The next meeting is March 3. Visit wsba-va.com.

A fresh look at dividend-paying stocks

If you don't have any dividend-paying stocks in your portfolio, it may be time to consider including some. After all, dividend-paying stocks provide a source of income that can grow over time. And dividends have a meaningful impact on total return, sometimes helping limit the impact of declines in share price.

Companies are not obligated to pay dividends, and those that don't may instead choose to reinvest their earnings in their businesses. Companies that pay annual dividends often have sufficient earnings to reward their shareholders and to invest in plans for future growth.

What to look for

When comparing dividend-paying stocks, investors should pay attention to dividend yield. This figure represents a company's total dividends per share over the last four quarters expressed as a percentage of its current stock price. However, the financial health of the company and its future prospects should also be examined carefully.

What's so important

Dividends provide investors with a steady stream of income. Investing in companies that are likely to increase their dividend payments over the years can help a long-term investor's income keep pace with inflation. That's a particularly important consideration for retirees who no longer rely on a salary and regular pay increases.

In addition, dividends can have a substantial impact on an investment's total return — irrespective of the investment climate. When stock values are rising, dividends help boost returns. During periods when stock prices are falling, dividends can help cushion overall losses.

Investors who don't need a regular income stream typically reinvest their dividends. Over time, the multiplier effect of this strategy can be significant. According to Standard & Poor's, the annualized total return of the S&P 500 Index from January 1926 to December 2006 was 10.5 percent per year, including both capital appreciation and dividends reinvested. The dividend component was 40.63 percent of the return.

A word on taxes

For federal tax purposes, dividends used to be treated as ordinary income and taxed at the investor's ordinary income-tax rate. Now, qualified dividends are taxed at the same rates as long-term capital gains. In 2007, the maximum rate on qualified dividends is 15 percent for taxpayers in a regular tax bracket greater than 15 percent and 5 percent for taxpayers in the 10 percent and 15 percent tax brackets.

The 5 percent rate that applies in the lower brackets drops to 0 percent in 2008-2010. The favorable dividend rates are set to expire after 2010.

Don't rush in

Dividend-paying stocks can be a smart addition to the portfolios of many investors. However, be sure to contact us before you make a decision about adding to your holdings. Our experienced investment professionals can help you choose the investments that are right for you.

Jeweler attends conference

Ross Christiansen of Ross's Rings and Things Ltd. in Kilmarnock, recently attended a series of educational seminars, workshops and courses at the Independent Jewelers Organization's Spring Conference in Colorado Springs.

Christiansen also had the opportunity to preview the lines of more than 150 top manufacturers and jewelry designers who exhibited their merchandise, some of which is exclusive to Master IJO Jeweler members and is not available from any other stores in this area. Christiansen then carefully selected many items for the Spring season.

IJO (www.ijo.com) is an international buying group and educational organization of independent retail jewelers with almost 900 members worldwide. Its group buying power enables members to offer customers the finest in

Virginia's cattle inventory down 3 percent

The inventory of Virginia cattle and calves totaled 1.57 million head on January 1, 2008, according to the USDA/NASS Virginia Field Office. This is a decrease of 3 percent from last year's inventory of 1.62 million head.

Virginia's inventory ranked 20th in the United States in total number of cattle and calves with 1.6 percent of the total United States inventory.

Beef cow inventory, at 692,000 head, was down 3 percent from last year's total of 710,000 head. Milk cow inventory totaled 98,000 head, down 2 percent from the 2007 total.

Total inventory of all cows that have calved was 790,000 head, down 2 percent from last year's total of 810,000 head.

Beef replacement heifers totaled 122,000 head on January 1, up almost 2 percent from the 2007 total of 120,000 head. The milk replacement heifer inventory increased 5,000 head from last year to 45,000 head.

Virginia's inventory of steers 500 pounds and over totaled 150,000 head, up 15 percent from the 2007 total of 130,000 head. Total inventory of all calves under 500 pounds was 365,000 head, 89 percent of the 2007 total.

The 2007 calf crop totaled 740,000 head, no change from the 2006 calf crop.

Public service emergency care seminars are offered

Safe Return! Wilderness Emergency Care & Survival Training Center (www.safereturntraining.com), an independent American Safety and Health Institute authorized training center, is offering schools, groups, and organizations with outdoor and public safety interests free medical emergency care seminars as an outreach and public information service.

In an era of random violence, people must ask themselves, "Am I really prepared to help myself and to help others when tragedy strikes?" As an example, "Could I properly apply a tourniquet or ensure someone has an open airway so they could breath?" The average person can easily bleed to death in less than seven minutes. Knowing how and where to properly apply a tourniquet can make a real life or death difference.

When an incident or an accident happens, whether it's in an outdoor setting or on the street, there are simple but critical key actions a rescuer can perform on himself or others that can make the difference between having a good outcome or a bad outcome - especially when emergency medical services may be more than 30 minutes away or medical assistance is hindered by unfolding events.

Topics included are the 12 ways to quickly evaluate whether or not a victim is in a life-threatening condition even if they don't think they are.

Also covered are the reasons why evaluating a child's injuries must be done differently than assessing an adult's injuries; reasons why most commercially available first aid kits cannot help save a life; how to use the $6 first aid item everyone should carry everyday, everywhere, that is no bigger than a fist, that will perform all the life saving and first aid functions most emergencies require.

Also discussed are the three most important steps a rescuer must take to make a life saving difference, and what most people don't know about how to get help on scene as quickly as possible no matter the location. Other topics include the emergency treatment of hunting- and fishing-related accidents and emergencies encountered by campers and hikers.

These seminars average 45 to 90 minutes. To schedule a seminar, visit safereturntraining.com, or call 313-0932.

Szyperski is promoted to chief executive officer

Jeffrey M. Szyperski was named chief executive officer of Chesapeake Financial Shares (CFS) as of January 1 by the board of directors at their last 2007 meeting.

"Under Jeff's leadership Chesapeake Financial Shares has diversified its resources, strengthened human resources and training, and added significant depth to asset management," said board chairman Douglas D. Monroe Jr.

CFS is the parent company of Chesapeake Bank and Chesapeake Investment Group. With over $483 million in assets, Chesapeake Bank has 11 offices in Lancaster, Mathews, Gloucester, James City County, and Williamsburg.

The Chesapeake Bank board of directors elected Szyperski bank president in 1998. In October 1999, he was elected to the CFS board of directors. As bank president, he has served as a member of its board of directors since 1998. When Szyperski became bank president its earnings were $1,389,000. Earnings for 2007 were $4,345,000, a 212 percent increase. Szyperski also is president of Chesapeake Investment Group and serves on its board of directors.

Szyperski came to Chesapeake after moving to the Northern Neck in 1990 from Raleigh, N.C., where he had been a senior manager for KPMG Peat Marwick. Szyperski is a member of the board of directors of the Virginia Bankers Association, of the board of advisors of the Christopher Newport University Joseph W. Luter III School of Business, of the board of advisors of Connect Rappahannock, of the Lancaster County Industrial Development Authority and of the board of trustees of the Graduate School of Banking at Louisiana State University.

He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the Graduate School of Banking at LSU. He is a certified public accountant and a certified financial planner.

He is past chairman of the Rappahannock Westminster-Canterbury board of trustees and past chairman and current member of the board of trustees of Chesapeake Academy. He serves on the personnel committee of Campbell Memorial Presbyterian Church and is a Sunday school teacher.

He and his wife, Wende, have four children, Jeffrey, Patrick, Ted and Emily and are residents of Weems.

Museum recognizes Irvington inn

Irvington's Hope and Glory Inn recently was named by The Virginia Museum of Fine Arts (VMFA) as one of 18 finalists for the 2008 Muse Awards, which honor the State of Virginia's most creative businesses.

The Muse Awards Committee received 80 nominations from businesses of all sizes, reflecting the state's economic and creative diversity in the most successful nominations campaign in the four-year history of the awards.

When nominated, it was said that the Hope and Glory's creativity is best understood by its guests who are delighted as shabby becomes chic and imperfections become perfection.

The inn, by design, strove to create truly one-of-a-kind experiences offered nowhere else, according to owners Peggy and Dudley Patterson.

"Dinners at Our Chef's Table" and "Friday Night Crab Cruises" are two such examples. No where else do the owners of an inn or restaurant host a dinner party with its guests, they said. No where else can one crack hard crabs while enjoying a cruise.

Another example would be the inn expanding its accommodation options by introducing the concept of "tents" which are three-bedroom cottages in White Fences Vineyard. Modeled after Oak Bluffs on Martha's Vineyard, these cottages, along with the inn's Garden Cottages, were named by USA Today and CNN as one of the "Top Ten Places to Rent a Cottage in the U.S."

Last year it became the first inn in America to recognize the value of marketing its area as much as itself. Website viewers see much more than a small inn, they are welcomed into the town of Irvington. The inn has positioned itself as if it "owns" the water activities, the golf courses, a restaurant, a vineyard, ten upscale shops, a museum, and an historic church. The benefits are two-fold: prospective guests see that there is so much more to enjoy; and, Irvington's businesses value the promotion and the support that comes from the Hope and Glory believing it also has a vested interest in their success.

Nine of the companies will be selected as Muse Award winners, and one will be named Top Muse for exceptional creativity.

"These businesses have literally put their creative inspiration to work, be it through their products, services, or missions," said Elizabeth Lowsley-Williams.

Winners of the fourth annual Muse Awards will be announced during the Muse Awards Un-Gala March 6. Conceived by the VMFA Business Council, the Un-Gala serves as a creative departure from the more traditional awards dinners and ceremonies; its theme is kept secret until the evening of the event.

The VMFA Business Council is sponsored by Hilb Rogal & Hobbs. Muse Awards sponsors for 2008 are Richmond Magazine, CXI, SunTrust and RBC Dain Rauscher.

Mosman joins hospital

Gary Mosman has joined Riverside Tappahannock Hospital as the new director of laboratory and rehabilitation services.

Mosman is a retired commander of the Medical Services Corps of the U.S. Navy. He graduated from the University of New Mexico in 1976 where he earned a bachelor's in medical technology. He has completed a master's in biology with an emphasis in immunobiotechnology from the University of Texas at San Antonio in 1984.

Mosman has held a variety of positions throughout his Navy career, in and outside the hospital laboratory setting. In all his assignments he guided the laboratories through the College of American Pathologist and Joint Commission Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations inspections.

He is a member of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists and the Society of Armed Forces Military Laboratory Scientists.

"We are very excited to have Gary with us. His extensive knowledge and experience will be a true asset to our facility," said hospital administrator Liz Martin.

Mosman and his wife, Paula, a medical technologist in Chesapeake, are pleased about moving to the area.

Buy a home with a low down payment

In the current housing market, potential homeowners are paying special attention to mortgage insurance that can make it possible to buy a home with a down payment of as little as three to five percent.

But since mortgage insurance protects the lender, not the homeowner, against financial loss, it's crucial that one can really afford to keep up the payments on the home.

Fine out more, including how much mortgage one can afford, with "How to Buy a Home With a Low Down Payment" from the Mortgage Insurance Companies of America. GED test dates set

The Northumberland GED Testing Center is offering free GED practice testing opportunities sponsored by the Regional Literacy Coordinating Committee and the Northern Neck Regional Adult Education Program.

The practice tests will be scheduled by appointment prior to the March and April official GED testing dates. Scoring a 450 on each subject on the practice GED test will qualify the tester for a scholarship worth $45 which covers the official GED testing fee. Call 580-3152 to schedule the practice test now.

The General Educational Development Test (GED) will be administered March 18 at Westmoreland Adult Resource Center in Montross and April 2 and 3 from 4:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Northern Neck Technical Center in Warsaw.

Candidates must register at their local school board office. Testing forms must be received by the Northumberland GED Testing Center three workdays prior to the actual testing date.

Examinees will be tested on their skills in writing, mathematics, social studies, science, language arts writing and language arts reading.

When candidates register, they must provide two forms of identification, including picture identification. Without a scholarship, the cost of the complete test battery is $45 or $7 for each retest to be paid by money order or certified check.

The Northumberland GED Testing Center will confirm registration by telephone prior to the test date. At testing candidates must show identification and plan to remain until the end of testing. Those taking retests may leave as soon as they finish the test. There will be opportunities for periodic breaks.

Students compete in Bland Music Competition

Fourteen participants from Mathews, Middlesex, Gloucester and Richmond counties as well as Newport News showed their talent at Bland Music Competition February 23 at Central United Methodist Church in Mathews.

There were two divisions, instrumental and vocal, judged by Aaron Ward, Wayne Hare, David Shuber and Nina Buzby.

The winners were:

- Vocal: first, Karalynn Dorothea Drechsel; second, Danielle Lorraine Roane; and third, Wyatt Christopher Adams.

- Instrumental: first, Tyler Graham Tillage; second, Wilson Summitt Pillow; and third, Wesley Abbott Kenyon.

The prizes were: $100, $50, and $25 for first, second and third place in each category.

The competition was sponsored by the Mathews and Middlesex Lions Clubs.

First-place winners will compete in the Lions Region I competition March 9 at Lewis Hall in Bruton Parish House Williamsburg.

The winners there will advance to the Lions District 24-D competition. The finalists from that event will then compete in a statewide competition at the Lions Annual State Convention in Bristol in May.

Students raise $3,500 for Heart Association

Chesapeake Academy students recently joined the American Heart Association's efforts to promote cardiovascular health and education with nearly 100 percent school-wide participation in "Jump Rope and Hoops for Heart."

The students in kindergarten through eighth grade raised $3,500 through sponsorships and cash contributions. They participated in a variety of basketball games as well as jump rope exercises, proud to be an active part of a nation-wide "Alliance for a Healthier Generation."

The American Heart Association, whose motto is "Learn and Live," encourages students nationwide to participate in either program to raise funds and increase awareness of the lifelong benefits exercise has on cardiovascular health.

"Jump Rope for Heart basically involves jumping rope," said Chesapeake Academy athletic director Cynthia Walker.

"It's equally strenuous and fun; Hoops for Heart gives students a different outlet for cardiovascular exercise; the older kids especially enjoy the basketball half-court challenges and mini-competitions," she said.

Hosted by the Rappahannock Institute for Lifelong Learning (RILL), Tom York will teach "The Modern Middle East" March 19 and 26 and April 2 at the Northumberland Public Library in Heathsville from 1 to 3 p.m.

The course is an updated, revised version of one York offered in 2004-05 for RILL and will explore historical, religious and political influences that have produced the modern Middle East.

Discussion will focus on the region's volatility, its energy resources, its potential for affecting world peace, and the obstacles that must be overcome if Middle Eastern countries are to achieve a measure of democratic governance.

York retired from the U.S. Navy in 1990, and moved to Kilmarnock with his wife, Luci. He affiliated with the local chapter of the Military Officers Association and served as its vice president and later its secretary. He has been

Presenting a musical comedy

Last weekend, the Christchurch School Fine Arts Department presented "Once Upon a Mattress," a musical comedy based on Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tale, "The Princess and the Pea." Some 50 students participated in the production directed by English Department chairman Stephen J. Kasold. Above, senior Landon Clark, the son of Mark and Beth Clark of White Stone, played the minstrel. Below, juniors Elie Smith, the daughter of Craig and Jeannie Smith, and Tyler Reeves, the son of Randy and Linda Reeves, all of White Stone, brought the audience to its feet with their portrayals of the overbearing Queen and the mute King.

Nominations now accepted for Super Teacher Awards

The Virginia Lottery and the Virginia PTA are looking for "super teachers." The Virginia Lottery Super Teacher Awards will help shine a spotlight on a valuable Virginia resource: dedicated and talented public school teachers who really make a difference in shaping young lives.

"The impact that a teacher can make in one's life is enormous," said Gov. Tim Kaine. "The Virginia Lottery's contribution to K-12 public education in the Commonwealth is vital and these awards highlight that effort."

The Lottery is seeking nominations for any K-12 Virginia public school teacher. Eight winners, one from each of eight geographic regions, will be chosen. Each award consists of a cash prize of $2,000 and an additional $2,000 classroom credit from Virginia-based The Supply Room Companies. The winners will be selected by a panel of educators and community leaders.

"The Virginia PTA is very pleased to partner with the Virginia Lottery for these fun, exciting and valuable awards," said president Melissa Nehrbass.

Anyone 18 or older can nominate a teacher by completing a nomination form and writing a short essay. Official rules and nomination forms are available at www.vilottery.com or www.vapopquiz.com. Nominations can be submitted online or they can be mailed. Nominations must be postmarked by April 11.

The winners will then be selected on the strength of their nominations. Winners will be announced between May 12 and May 23 in the winning teacher's hometown.

County backs historic jail refurbishing project

HEATHSVILLE—The Northumberland board of supervisors recently voted to contribute $5,000 to refurbishing the 1844 county-owned jail in Heathsille. The project is being carried out by the Northumberland County Historical Society (NCHS).

"History is one of our county's assets," said county administrator Kenny Eades. "Northumberland is known as the 'Mother County of the Northern Neck,' and we do well to preserve, as much as possible, those remnants of another era. The 1844 jail, in stark contrast to our more modern jail directly behind it, is mute testimony to our growth in understanding of human needs."

"Our early jails during the colonial period might have been little more than stockades, but they typically had stocks and whipping posts," said society member Tom Wolf. "As our approach to crime and punishment has changed, so have our jails."

The 1844 jail was in use until the late 1950s. It typically housed those temporarily detained for mild infractions such as Saturday night overindulgence, those held over for trial, and those awaiting transportation to the penitentiary in Richmond. After the Civil War and well into the 20th century, the jail also temporarily housed people adjudged to be insane.

In winter, the jail was heated by coal. Even after electricity came to Heathsille in the 1930s, there was no way to air-condition the building. The sheriff had custody of the jail, providing meals cooked by his wife, buying new mattresses and blankets from time to time, and even bought clothing for indigents. Such expenses were reimbursed by the county.

"It is such history that we expect the jail to recall in its exhibits. It is also intended to be a focal point in our historic Courtyard Square, providing information about our history and pertinent current events for our residents as well as our visitors," said society member Jane Towner.

The NCHS is pursuing a campaign to raise funds. It is housed nearby in the Ball Memorial Museum and Library. The library contains one of the largest collections of original historic materials of the county and the Northern Neck, and is consulted by historians and genealogists. Membership is open to all; call the society at 580-8581.

From left, Jane Towner and Kenny Eades stand inside a cell in the 1844 jail. The iron bars and the locking system were installed in 1917 and will be preserved.

Virginia Kelley and her son, Thomas, hold an iron gate to the Kelley family burial plot in Christ Church yard.

Kellys donate iron gate to Christ Church project

WEEMS—Virginia Kelley and her son Thomas recently donated an iron gate to the Foundation for Historic Christ Church.

The gate will be featured in the new museum gallery currently in design there, said education director and curator Robert Teagle. It was part of a brick wall built around 1850 that enclosed the burial plot of the Kelley family in the Christ Church yard, he said.

In the 1830s, brothers James and William Kelley played a critical role in reviving the parish and undertaking important repairs to the church building, said Teagle.

Tradition holds that when the last male member of the family died, he requested that after his burial, the iron gate be locked and the key thrown into the Rappahannock River, he said.

The gate remains in the locked position. The new museum gallery, part of a comprehensive site improvement plan at Christ Church, is set to open in October 2008.

Zoning administrator W. H. Shirley said Dunn's plans are in compliance with the Chesapeake Bay Act and that VDOT would require a traffic impact study at the entrance.

Commenting on the comprehensive plan, Fisher said, "One point is to allow more public access. So what do you deem public access, residential or public business?"

"That property seems to be in an area that would accept (the development)," commission member Charles Williams said. "Mr. Dunn wants to make money as we all do. But I don't want to put too much density on it. Something is going to be built on it."

Williams also noted that Dunn had already invested a lot of money developing the property.

"I'm really concerned about how much it's going to do for the county," commission member Garfield Parker said. "We've had a lot of promises come through this room—but when are we going to take this comprehensive plan seriously? You're not thinking about it now, but you need to think about it 50 years down the road."

"I'm perplexed by the way this project has meandered all over the place over the years," said commission member Bill Kling.

The motion to table the vote until their next meeting came from commission member Jim Stone, who said his was one of three votes against the development three years ago.

"In all fairness to people that oppose it and to Mr. Dunn, we should study it in detail as to the impact on the community," said Stone. "We need to give it more thought."

The motion passed, 7-0. Gertha Basye was the only member not in attendance.

Calling all cooks

The North Carolina Sweet Potato Commission will sponsor a Get Fresh with North Carolina Sweet Potatoes consumer recipe contest. The commission is calling for original recipes for soups, salads, sides and sweets. Recipes must be received by April 15.

Rules and entry forms may be found at www.getfreshwithsweetpotatoes.com, or interested cooks may send a SASE to Get Fresh With North Carolina Sweet Potatoes Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 575, Selma, N.C. 27576 to request contest information. Winners will be notified no later than June 1. In all, $5,000 will be awarded for the best sweet potato recipes.

"There will be four first-place prizes of $500. They will come from each of four recipe categories: soups, salads, sides and sweets. A grand prize of $3,000 will be selected from the four first-prize winners," said Sue Johnson-Langdon, executive director.

Promotional support of the contest is being provided by Taste of the South magazine, tasteofthesouthmagazine.com.

North Carolina is the nation's largest producer of sweet potatoes with 40 percent of the national supply coming from the state. Recipes, nutrition and more information about sweet potatoes may be found at ncsweetpotatoes.com.

Dunn said the project was being developed with the professional expertise and engineering of ECS of Williamsburg.

"It meets the Chesapeake Bay Act at the time the plans were approved," Dunn said. He also clarified that delays in the marina project were caused by installation of the pilings and reworking plans after permit requests were denied.

"The economic situation has changed," since beginning the project, he said. "The market is not there for the hotel or rentable office space...but the market is turning around for condos." Dunn attributed the information to area Realtors.

Zoning administrator W. H. Shirley said Dunn's plans are in compliance with the Chesapeake Bay Act and that VDOT would require a traffic impact study at the entrance.
